

CHILDHOOD AND ADOLESCENT DISRUPTIVE BEHAVIOR

DISORDERS: Assessment and Treatment of Attention Deficit/Hyperactive, Oppositional Defiant and Conduct Disorders

by

*Dr. Philip Tsui, Psy.D.,
Licensed Clinical Social Worker, California, USA*

This course provides an overview of three common behavioral disorders with onset in childhood and adolescence and their treatment options. It outlines methodology in the assessment of such disorders in this population. It emphasizes the importance of making the proper differential diagnosis in the development of appropriate behavioral management plan and intervention strategies. It highlights how many psychiatric disorders can be mis-diagnosed as Attention Deficit/Hyperactive, Oppositional Defiant and Conduct Disorder leading to erroneous treatment.

It highlights the roles of the family members and therapists in working with physicians, teachers in managing these mental disorders and the behavioral problems of these young clients.

Format:

Lectures, analysis of case vignettes and small group discussions.
